DCUK Names Woodstock Percussion US Distributor of Wildly Popular UK Line of Hand-Carved Ducks

SHOKAN, NY -- “Lord Love A Duck,” a smash hit record and movie in the 1960s, is the perfect way to describe the phenomenal appeal of the dcuk line of hand-carved wooden ducks among garden, gift and specialty shop aficionados in the United Kingdom. That appeal is now migrating across the pond. U.K.-based dcuk (“the Duck Company”) has named Woodstock Percussion exclusive US distributor for the wildly popular collection.

Crafted in Indonesia of sinuous, hand-carved bamboo root with teak accents, the dcuk line represents a breakout addition to Woodstock’s “Environments” line of garden accessories. “Dcuk’s appeal is both lifelike and whimsical,” says Woodstock founder Garry Kvistad. “An ideal way to transform one’s garden or favorite green spot into a personal flight of fancy.”

Ever since dcuk, a small, family-owned British company, hatched its line of unique, individually named adults, ducklets (adolescents), ducklings and duck eggs two years ago, garden and specialty shop retailers have been, it’s fair to say, flocking to its doors.

Dcuks are delivered, ten to a crate, in small, medium and large configurations. Each case is pre-packed by size; no mixing and matching. Suggested retail price points range from $24.99 (small-7 ¾”) to $32.99 (medium—12”) and $37.99 (large – 17 ¾”) per copy. Dcuks’ variations in size and type allow homeowners the freedom to create their own “imprints” –endless flocks, families, pairs and nests.
